Meet “Charolotte” the Chorus Frog

Didja Know?

The chorus frog is small and smooth skinned, and varies in colour from green-grey to brown. A dark stripe runs through the eye and a white stripe along the upper lip. This species is distinguished from most other treefrogs by the three dark stripes down the back. In some individuals, the stripes are broken into dashes or dots. The maximum size of the adult is just under four centimetres. The breeding call of this species resembles the sound made by running a fingernail along the teeth of a comb. It closely resembles its cousin the boreal chorus frog.
